Norwich University Student Internship Guide

Introduction

Norwich University has always been a place where education is anything but a passive affair. Norwich students dive into everything they learn, getting their hands dirty - both figuratively and literally – realizing that the best complement to a classroom education is a real world education.

One of the best ways to extend your learning beyond the classroom is to do an internship. An internship lets you go into a work environment and apply your academic skills directly, through hands-on, real world experience.

Internships can be valuable for every student, and more and more employers are expecting to see internships on resumes when they hire college grads. Nearly 2 out of 3 people who are hired straight out of college have internship experience!

At Norwich, there are lots of options for internships:

- You can do an internship during the school year or during the summer
- Students in any major can do internships
- You can get credit for many internships, and you can also do them without credit
- Many internships are paid

We have a full-time Internship Coordinator who is here to help you find the best internship for you. Most students do internships in their sophomore year or later, but it’s never too early to come in and talk to the Internship Coordinator, to start planning.

An internship through Norwich University is a learning experience that allows students to apply their academic skills in a work environment. It combines academic learning goals with hands-on, real world experience. Internships are supervised, goal-oriented, and integrated into the student's overall educational plan.

Combining thinking and action, conception and execution, internships bring together the best of work and school into a first-class educational experience for students, and a valuable, beneficial position for the employer.
The Participants

There are several participants involved in ensuring that an internship is successful. These individuals and their roles and responsibilities are indicated below.

Student Intern’s Role

The student is expected to take an active role in finding his or her internship site. With the guidance of the Internship Coordinator and other Career Center staff, students will complete all the necessary hiring documents, such as resumes and cover letters. The student intern is also responsible for selecting the internship and seeking out a faculty supervisor, when an internship is taken for credit. The faculty supervisor should be a person who has knowledge about the field in which the internship is requested. The intern is also responsible for meeting with the site supervisor prior to the internship to clarify expectations and responsibilities. Next, S/he completes an Internship Learning Contract and a Student Internship Release Form, works the required number of hours, seeks out supervision on site as needed, and completes the academically-related tasks which are agreed upon by the faculty supervisor and intern (such as a journal, supplementary research, and/or a paper). In addition, the intern maintains high standards of professionalism while at the internship site, keeping in mind that they are representing Norwich University.

Faculty Supervisor’s Role (for Credited Internships)

The faculty supervisor is responsible for helping the intern integrate the internship into his or her total academic experience. S/he provides academic direction and evaluates the learning derived from the internship.

Early in the process of finding an internship, the student should approach a faculty member who has some expertise in the area which he or she wishes to pursue an internship. Once the faculty member agrees to be a supervisor, they should meet to discuss the student’s goals in finding and completing an internship. The faculty supervisor can serve as a resource for the student in locating and evaluating the appropriate internship.

Once the student has found an internship, the faculty supervisor will advise the student in defining the Learning Contract objectives, tasks, and evaluation criteria, as well as the amount of credits. The faculty supervisor will also help the student in defining the academic requirements for the internship. Academic requirements can be a journal, paper, relevant research and/or projects.

The faculty supervisor maintains appropriate contact with the student throughout the internship to give direction and support. The faculty supervisor is asked to initiate a phone call to the site supervisor prior to signing the Learning Contract to establish contact and communication. Other forms of recommended contact throughout the internship are site visits, email or phone calls with the intern and site supervisor, progress reports and feedback sent between the intern and faculty supervisor, and meetings which occur off-site between the intern and faculty supervisor. The amount and form of contact is determined by the faculty supervisor, and sometimes the faculty supervisor will defer to the internship coordinator to make the majority of the contacts.

At the end of the semester, the faculty supervisor and student intern will meet to review the academic projects and to review the experience. The faculty supervisor evaluates the intern’s learning and assigns and submits a grade.
Site (Field) Supervisor’s Role

Student interns are supervised by a staff person employed by the site organization. Typically, the site supervisor has experience and expertise in the area in which the student is interning. Site supervisors are responsible for interviewing interns, determining qualifications for the position, orienting interns to the organization, supervising, directing, and evaluating their work. The ideal site supervisor will serve as a mentor, sharing the pros and cons of a career in the field and giving suggestions for entering the profession. S/he will also have sufficient experience in the field to draw from and will share that experience with the student intern. The site supervisor meets with the intern on a regular basis to guide performance, answer questions, and provide background information and resources related to the intern’s work. Norwich University requires two evaluations during the internship. Site supervisors will complete a mid-term and a final written evaluation. A site supervisor may also help by recommending ways to enhance the intern’s learning.

Internship Coordinator’s Role

The internship coordinator is a staff member in the Career Center and serves as the central information resource for all questions concerning internships at Norwich University. The coordinator is responsible for informing the participants in the internship of their roles and responsibilities. The coordinator addresses questions and, if necessary, mediates problems and issues among the participants in the experience. S/he also works with faculty, students, and employers to create student learning contracts.

The internship coordinator is responsible for informing prospective interns about the process and requirements of securing and participating in both credit and non-credit bearing internships. Students can learn this information by meeting regularly with the coordinator or through meeting with other career center staff. The coordinator can also help with the internship search process elements, such as setting goals, contacting faculty and employers, writing resumes and cover letters, and interviewing.

Required Paperwork

Within the first week of a credit-bearing internship, the student must create a Learning Contract and complete a Student Internship Release Form. The Student Internship Release Form addresses issues of insurance coverage and personal conduct (Appendix A). All credit-bearing internships require a faculty signature on both forms.

Learning Contract (Appendix B)

A learning contract is a planned, purposeful agreement by the student and faculty supervisor that indicates the objectives, learning methods, and evaluation of the internship. It is to be created within the first week of an internship with the faculty supervisor’s help and approval. The three sections to be included are:

Objectives/Goals: what the student plans to learn from the internship experience.

Learning Methods: how the goals will be implemented at the site and academically: the actual tasks, job duties and academic assignments

Evaluation: the criteria for evaluation used by the faculty and site supervisors

Samples of learning contracts are available in Appendix B and in the Career Center.
Contacting and Interviewing With Potential Internship Sites

The process of applying for and securing an internship can vary widely between organizations. The process can be as informal as talking to an employer on the telephone about the position or it can be as formal as submitting a resume/cover letter/portfolio and having an interview. Regardless of how informal or formal the process is, interview preparation is especially important to a student's success in securing the desired internship.

Prior to Contacting the Internship Site:

- Determine your goals for the internship. What specific skills or experiences do you want to have? Some internships are very flexible (particularly if it is an internship that is created by the intern). If you don't plan and ask for the experiences you want, they may not happen.
- Research other internships similar to the one you are seeking using Google, Linked in or other internet resources, including Norwich University's Career Compass. This will provide a background of information for you to assess the opportunities at the internship and give you ideas about ways to adapt the internship for your particular needs.
- Assess your experiences and skills in the field you are seeking an internship (this will probably include coursework, involvement in activities and part-time jobs) so you can be better prepared to answer questions.
- Determine any limitations on the duration of the internship, hours per week, transportation availability, financial considerations, and housing that you may have regarding the internship.

Contacting the Internship Site:

- Use the name and number given in the resource to contact the internship site. If there isn’t a name, ask the receptionist for the name of a person who coordinates internships. If there isn’t such a person, ask for a supervisor in the department in which you are interested in doing the internship.
- Once you are speaking to the correct person, identify yourself and the fact that you are a student at Norwich University. Tell the person how you found out about the internship and inquire if it is available for the period of time in which you are interested. If it is available, ask about the application process.
- Ask any other questions you may have and allow them to ask you questions. Thank the individual for their time.
- When you apply, be sure to mention your phone call in any correspondence you send.

Steps to an Internship

1. Assess your skills, interests, and values

   Why do you want to do an internship? What would you like to learn from an internship? What kind of work do you especially enjoy, and what kind do you prefer to avoid? Think as broadly as you can about what you can put into an internship, and what you hope to get out of one.
2. Prepare your resume

Visit the Career Development Center website and the Optimal Resume website to start a draft of your resume. Then make an appointment with a career counselor to review this draft and finalize it.

3. Figure out how an internship fits into your overall academic plan

Do you want credit for your internship? When do you want to do it? Do you have other commitments you need to work around, such as study abroad or military training? Speak with your advisor early to make sure that your overall plan includes an opportunity for an internship.

4. Research prospective internship sites

Visit the Internships website for resources to help with this. Utilize the NU Alumni Online Community, LinkedIn NU Connections Group, career fairs, Club networking nights for networking with alumni. Speak with your professors. Let everyone around you (friends, family, coworkers, etc.) know that you are interested in an internship so they can be networking resources for you.

5. Make a list of internship sites that interest you

From your research, identify the sites that you would like to actively pursue.

6. Make contact and apply

Approach the sites on your list – either by following their established application process or by approaching them directly to inquire about internships. For those you approach directly, follow their application instructions if they are open to having an intern.

7. Finalize academic and personal arrangements

Once you accept an internship offer, finalize your plans for obtaining credit (if you wish to), traveling, and finding housing.
